

Mike's Klutz-o-mania

A WEB PAGE FOR CLUMSY, AWKWARD, UNGAINLY FUMBLERS AND STUMBLERS

MY KLUTZ BLOG

By Mike McCarty

August 31, 2013

I beat the odds! At my daughter's wedding in August, I successfully walked Jill down the aisle without tripping or walking into a post. And after her groom, Jon, took over, I made it to the correct pew. For any of my brothers who were playing the odds, I apologize for any money you lost. But, then, you shouldn't be betting at weddings.

How clumsy of me! I forgot to welcome you to the first edition of my "Klutz-o-mania" page on the McCarty Metro website. Every other week, I will post a new blog entry to keep you abreast of my latest spills and slipups, and I'll offer my take on the latest clumsy deeds of klutzes in the public spotlight. Also, I'll answer readers' questions.

What qualifies me as a klutz? See my bio below, and visit Amazon.com and pick up a copy of "Michael, Michael, Michael."

Kudos to Metro Editor Kelly McCarty for befriending a klutzy brother. And Tigers fans, you can visit the Metro's Mario and Rod page for recent verbal gaffes of the pair of baseball broadcasters.

All the best,

Mike

OAF FORECAST

Sept. 1-14

Cloudy judgment early in the week, giving way to a clod front and intermittent pratfalls.

ORDER MIKE MCCARTY'S BOOK OF KLUTZ HUMOR FROM AMAZON.COM.

Michael

Michael

Michael

Confessions of an
Outrageous, Contagious
Klutz

Mike McCarty

CLUMSY TALK

"Real young pitching staff now the White Sox have." -- Tigers TV 'caster (and verbal klutz) Rod Allen in August